

A SUMATEC ENGINEERING AND CONSTRUCTION
SDN BHD

v.

B MALAYSIAN REFINING COMPANY SDN BHD

FEDERAL COURT, PUTRAJAYA

ARIFIN ZAKARIA CJ

HASHIM YUSOFF FCJ

ABDULL HAMID EMBONG FCJ

C [CIVIL APPEAL NO: 02 (i)-27-2011 (W)]

29 FEBRUARY 2012

D CONTRACT: Performance bonds - Beneficiary's right - Call on bond - Whether unconscionable conduct entitled court to restrain beneficiary from calling on or demanding and receiving monies under bank guarantee or performance bond - Court to consider claim on case to case basis - Whether unconscionability proven

E BANKING: Guarantee - Bank guarantee - Demand on guarantee - Whether unconscionable conduct entitled court to restrain beneficiary from calling on or demanding and receiving monies under bank guarantee or performance bond - Court to consider claim on case to case basis - Whether unconscionability proven

F CIVIL PROCEDURE: Injunction - Demand for payment of bank guarantee - Injunction to restrain respondent from calling upon bank guarantee - Whether unconscionability proven to maintain injunction granted - Whether there were reasons to justify interference with appellate judges' exercise of discretion to set aside injunction - Balance of convenience - Whether favoured refusal of injunction

G The appellant ('Sumatec') was appointed by the respondent ('MRC') to be its contractor for a project ('the Structural Steel works contract'). Sumatec was to also provide a bank guarantee for the due performance of the contract. It was Sumatec's
H assertion that they had duly completed all works required of them by delivery of all agreed steel structure, which was confirmed by the respondent through the issuance of a Provisional Acceptance Certificate. However, a dispute arose between the two parties and subsequently Sumatec was informed that MRC had proceeded to
I make a demand for payment or encashment of the bank guarantee. Sumatec contended that MRC's call on the bank guarantee amounted to unconscionable conduct and this in itself was sufficient ground to challenge the calling for payments under the said bank guarantee. In the High Court, Sumatec succeeded in obtaining an injunction to restrain the respondent from calling upon the bank guarantee issued by Bank Islam Malaysia Berhad (BIMB). However, the Court of Appeal found that MRC was not guilty of any unconscionable conduct to restrain it from calling on the bank guarantee and had allowed MRC's appeal, concluding that the balance of convenience tipped in favour of MRC and that damages would, at the end of the day, be a sufficient remedy for Sumatec. Herein, leave to appeal was allowed on the sole question namely, whether 'unconscionable conduct' on the part of a beneficiary of a bank guarantee or a performance bond was a distinct ground, apart from "fraud", that entitled the court to restrain the beneficiary from calling on or demanding and receiving monies under the bank guarantee or performance bond.

Held (dismissing the appeal with costs)

Per Abdull Hamid Embong FCJ delivering the judgment of the court:

- (1) The principle recognising unconscionability as a separate and distinct ground to restrain a beneficiary from making a call on a performance bond accorded with good commercial sense (Kejuruteraan Bintai Kindenko Sdn Bhd v. Nam Fatt Construction Sdn Bhd & Anor; Focal Asia Sdn Bhd & Anor v. Raja Noraini Raja Datuk Nong Chik & Anor). Thus, unconscionability may now be raised as a distinct ground. The determination on whether unconscionability applies in a particular case would therefore depend largely on the material facts. (para 40)
- (2) Sumatec raised several incidences of the alleged unconscionable conduct on the part of MRC. These were factual matters which had been carefully evaluated and answered in the Court of Appeal. The learned judges had rightly concluded based on the materials before them, that unconscionability had not been proven to maintain the injunction granted. There were no reasons to justify an interference with the appellate judges' exercise of their discretion to set aside the injunction. It was unnecessary to add, minus or expand on the reasons given by the Court of Appeal to its negative finding of unconscionability on the part of MRC. Balance of convenience favoured refusal of the injunction. (para 43)

A Bahasa Malaysia Translation Of Headnotes

Perayu ('Sumatec') dilantik oleh responden ('MRC') sebagai kontraktor untuk satu projek ('kontrak kerja-kerja keluli struktur'). Sumatec juga menyediakan bank gerenti bagi pelaksanaan wajar kontrak. Sumatec menyatakan bahawa mereka telah menyempurnakan semua kerja-kerja yang diperlukan dengan pengantaran semua struktur keluli yang dipersetujui, yang disahkan oleh responden melalui pengeluaran Sijil Penerimaan Sementara. Walaubagaimanapun, pertikaian timbul di antara kedua-dua pihak dan seterusnya Sumatec telah diberitahu bahawa MRC telah membuat tuntutan bayaran atau penunaian bank gerenti. Sumatec berhujah bahawa tuntutan bank gerenti yang dibuat oleh MRC adalah satu tindakan tidak berpatutan dan ini adalah alasan yang mencukupi untuk membantah tuntutan untuk bayaran di bawah bank gerenti tersebut. Di dalam Mahkamah Tinggi, Sumatec berjaya mendapatkan injunksi untuk menghalang responden dari menuntut bank gerenti yang dikeluarkan oleh Bank Islam Malaysia Berhad (BIMB). Walaubagaimanapun, Mahkamah Rayuan mendapati MRC tidak bersalah melakukan apa-apa tindakan tidak berpatutan dan telah membenarkan rayuan MRC, dengan membuat kesimpulan bahawa imbalan keselesaan lebih condong ke pihak MRC dan gantirugi, pada akhirnya, merupakan remedi mencukupi bagi Sumatec. Di sini, kebenaran membuat rayuan dibenarkan atas soalan undang-undang tunggal, iaitu, sama ada 'tindakan yang tidak berpatutan' dari pihak benefisiari bank gerenti atau bon pelaksanaan adalah alasan tersendiri, selain daripada 'fraud', yang memberi hak kepada mahkamah untuk menghalang benefisiari dari menuntut atau menerima wang di bawah bank gerenti atau bon pelaksanaan.

G Diputuskan (menolak rayuan dengan kos)
Oleh Abdull Hamid Embong HMP menyampaikan penghakiman mahkamah:

H (1) Prinsip mengiktiraf 'tindakan tidak berpatutan' sebagai alasan asing dan tersendiri bagi menghalang seorang benefisiari dari membuat tuntutan terhadap bon pelaksanaan mempunyai maksud komersial yang bagus (Kejuruteraan Bintai Kindenko Sdn Bhd v. Nam Fatt Construction Sdn Bhd & Anor; Focal Asia Sdn Bhd & Anor v. Raja Noraini Raja Datuk Nong Chik & Anor).
I Oleh itu, tindakan tidak berpatutan kini boleh dibangkitkan sebagai alasan tersendiri. Penentuan sama ada tindakan tidak berpatutan terpakai dalam kes tertentu banyak bergantung kepada fakta-fakta material.

- (2) Sumatec telah membangkitkan beberapa kejadian-kejadian yang didakwa tindakan tidak berpatutan pihak MRC. Ini adalah perkara-perkara fakta yang telah dinilai secara teliti dan dijawab di Mahkamah Rayuan. Yang arif hakim-hakim telah membuat kesimpulan yang betul berdasarkan material-material yang terdapat di hadapan mereka, bahawa tindakan tidak berpatutan tidak dibuktikan untuk mengekalkan injunksi yang diberikan. Tiada alasan timbul untuk mewajarkan gangguan ke atas budibicara yang dilaksanakan oleh hakim-hakim rayuan untuk mengeneipkan injunksi. Ia adalah tidak perlu untuk menambah, menolak atau mengembangkan alasan-alasan Mahkamah Rayuan mengenai dapatan bahawa tiada tindakan yang tidak berpatutan dilakukan pihak MRC. Imbangan keselesaan lebih condong kepada penolakan injunksi.

Case(s) referred to:

- Bains Harding (Malaysia) Sdn Bhd v. Arab-Malaysian Merchant Bank Berhad & 3 Ors* [1996] 1 BLJ 25 HC (refd)
- Bank of Nova Scotia v. Angelica - Whitewear* (1987) 36 DLR (4th) 161 SC (refd)
- Bocotra Construction Pte Ltd & Ors v. AG (No. 2)* [1995] 2 SLR 733 (refd)
- Bocotra Construction Pte Ltd v. AG* [1995] 2 SLR (R) 262 (refd)
- CDN Research & Development Ltd v. Bank of Nova Scotia* (1980) 18 CPC 62 (refd)
- Commercial Bank of Australia Ltd v. Amadio and Another* [1983] 46 ALR 402 (refd)
- Dauphin Offshore Engineering and Trading Pte Ltd v. The Private Office of HRH Sheikh Sultan bin Khadifa bin Zayed Al-Nahyan* [2000] 1 SLR (R) 117 (refd)
- Edward Owen Engineering Ltd v. Barclays Bank International Ltd* [1978] 1 All ER 976 (refd)
- Edward Owen Engineering Ltd v. Barclays Bank International Ltd* [1978] QB 159 (refd)
- Esso Petroleum Malaysia Inc v. Kago Petroleum Sdn Bhd* [1995] 1 CLJ 283 SC (refd)
- Focal Asia Sdn Bhd & Anor v. Raja Noraini Raja Datuk Nong Chik & Anor* [2009] 1 LNS 913 HC (refd)
- GHL Pte Ltd v. Unitrack Building Construction Pte Ltd* [1999] 4 SLR 604 (refd)
- GHL Pte Ltd v. Unitrack Building Construction Pte Ltd and Another* [1999] 3 SLR (R) 44 (refd)
- Harbottle (Mercantile) v. National Westminster Bank Ltd* [1978] 1 QB 146 (refd)
- IE Contractors Ltd v. Lloyd's Bank Plc* [1990] 2 Lloyd's Rep 496 (refd)

- A Kejuruteraan Bintai Kindenko Sdn Bhd v. Nam Fatt Construction Sdn Bhd & Anor [2011] 7 CLJ 442 CA (refd)
LEC Contractors (M) Sdn Bhd v. Castle Inn Sdn Bhd & Anor [2000] 3 CLJ 473 CA (refd)
Lloyds Bank v. Bundy [1975] QB 326 (refd)
- B Min Thai Holdings Pte Ltd v. Suniable Pte Ltd & Anor [1999] 2 SLR 368 (refd)
Nafas Abadi Holdings Sdn Bhd v. Putrajaya Holdings Sdn Bhd & Anor [2004] 1 LNS 127 HC (refd)
New Civilbuild Pte Ltd v. Guobena Sdn Bhd & Another [1999] 1 SLR 374 (refd)
- C Newtech Engineering Construction Pte Ltd v. BKB Engineering Constructions Pte Ltd and Others [2003] SGHC 141 (refd)
Olex Focas Pty Ltd v. Skodaexport Co Ltd [1998] 3 VR 380 (refd)
Samwoh Asphalt Premix Pte Ltd v. Sum Cheong Piling Pte Ltd & Anor [2002] 1 SLR 1 (refd)
- D Satriadesa Corporation Sdn Bhd v. Tenaga Nasional Bhd [2010] 4 CLJ 877 HC (refd)
Shanghai Electric Group Co Ltd v. PT Merak Energi Indonesia [2010] 2 SLR 329 (refd)
Stern v. McArthur (1988) 165 CLR 489 (refd)
The Radio & General Trading Co Sdn Bhd v. Wayss & Freytag (Malaysia) Sdn Bhd [1997] 1 LNS 400 HC (refd)
- E

Legislation referred to:

Trade Practices Act 1974 [Aus], ss. 51AA, 51AB, 51AC

Other source(s) referred to:

- F Halsbury's Law of England, 3rd edn, vol 17 [1956], p 682
 Jeffrey J Browne, The Fraud Exception to Standby Letters of Credit in Australia: Does it Embrace Statutory Unconscionability? Bond Law Review vol II Issue 1, 6 January 1999
Unconscionability As A Ground For Withholding Payment In Demand Guarantees: Should The Exception Be Extended To Letters Of Credit?
- G [2008] 1 MLJ clxxxiii
- For the appellant - Alex De Silva (Melinda D'Angelus with him);
 M/s Bodipalar Ponnudurai De Silva*
For the respondent - Azlan Sulaiman; M/s Azmi & Assocs
- H [Appeal from Court of Appeal; Civil Appeal No: W-02(IM)(NCC)-3223-2010]
- [Editor's note: For the Court of Appeal judgment, please see Malaysian Refining Company Sdn Bhd v. Sumatec Engineering And Construction Sdn Bhd [2011] 7 CLJ 21.]
- I Reported by Suhainah Wahiduddin

JUDGMENT

A

Abdull Hamid Embong FCJ:

[1] In the High Court the appellant here (Sumatec) succeeded in obtaining an injunction to restrain the respondent here (MRC) from calling upon a bank guarantee issued by Bank Islam Malaysia Berhad (BIMB). The High Court also dismissed MRC's application to set aside an earlier ex parte injunction order dated 4 June 2010 obtained by Sumatec to the same effect.

B

[2] The ex parte interlocutory application by Sumatec in the High Court was for the following prayers:

C

- (a) to restrain the MRC from calling upon the bank guarantee issued by BIMB;
- (b) alternatively, if a demand had been made by the MRC, for MRC to be restrained from receiving the sum guaranteed thereunder;
- (c) further alternatively, if any sum have been released by the BIMB to MRC, MRC to be restrained from utilizing or dealing with such sums pending determination and disposal of Sumatec's claim in this suit or further order; and
- (d) A further order sought against MRC was to the effect that, if the monies under the bank guarantee had been received by the MRC from the BIMB, MRC was to be directed to refund such monies to BIMB in the meanwhile.

D

E

F

[3] The background facts had been clearly set out in the judgment of the trial judge and suffice for us to reproduce them (with some editing).

G

- (a) By a letter of award dated 9 May 2008 Sumatec was appointed by MRC to be its contractor for the Design, Supply, Fabrication and Erection of Structural Steel for the Melaka Refinery PSR-2 Revamp Project at Sungei Udang, Melaka (the Structural Steel works contract).

H

The parties subsequently entered into a contract in writing for this Structural Steel works. This was a Bill of Quantities Contract.

I

- A (b) By another letter of award dated 15 May 2008 Sumatec was also awarded a contract for the Civil Works related to the same Project (The Civil Works Contract).
- B (c) This present proceedings only involves the Structural Steel Works Contract. As per the terms of this aspect of the contract Sumatec was required to complete the works by 31 May 2009.
- C (d) Sumatec was also to provide a bank guarantee for the due performance of the contract for 10% of the contract value of the Structural Steel works. The full contract sum as initially agreed by the parties was RM 47,846,688 and accordingly Sumatec procured a bank guarantee from BIMB for the sum of RM4,784,668.80 with the MRC as the named beneficiary.
- D The bank guarantee was to be valid until three months after expiry of the warranty period, which in turn was twelve months after the date of provisional acceptance of the works as certified by issue of a provisional acceptance certificate.
- E (e) Sumatec claimed that their works were seriously hindered by delays on the part of the MRC to supply complete drawings and this had a knock-on effect on the production and fabrication of steel structures for the MRC's project. Further, it is alleged, that there were no specific milestones set for completion of parts or stages of the works but that the
- F completion date set for the 31 May 2009 was for the overall works.
- G (f) It was Sumatec's further claim that MRC had proceeded to reduce the scope of Sumatec's works by removing certain aspects of the works, like the erection of the steel structures, from Sumatec original scope of works. This variation was confirmed on 16 June 2009. In effect the value of the remaining contractual works had by that move now been reduced to about RM13 million only from the original contract
- H value of about RM47 million. The bank guarantee issued still remained in force notwithstanding this variation in the total value of works.
- I (g) Sumatec also asserted that they had by 31 May 2009 duly completed all works required of them under the reduced scope of contract by delivery of all agreed steel structure.

- (h) MRC had confirmed this, it is alleged, by the issuance of a provisional acceptance certificate on 17 November 2009 which certified that Sumatec's contractual works had been carried out and completed as of 31 May 2010. A
- (i) Upon completion of their works as aforesaid, Sumatec had raised with MRC two claims for unpaid monies amounting RM4,338,684.48. B
- (j) It is alleged by Sumatec that MRC in turn had introduced a claim for back charges without any notice of defects or opportunity given to Sumatec to rectify any such defects if at all, and this was in disregard to the terms of the contract between them. Sumatec stated that this claim of MRC had been and continues to be seriously disputed by Sumatec and further highlighted the fact that the provisional acceptance certificate had been issued to Sumatec in November 2009 notwithstanding this claim for 'back charges'. C D
- (k) Sumatec produced records, in the form of minutes of meetings and correspondences to show that the parties had and continued to be engaged in active negotiations to resolve their disputes and finalise the 'final account' as between them when Sumatec was informed on 1 June 2010 by BIMB that MRC had made a demand for payment or encashment of the bank guarantee. E
- (l) It was against this backdrop that MRC had proceeded to make the demand on the bank guarantee. Sumatec contends that MRC in doing so was acting mala fide, with an intention to enrich itself and/or 'steal a march' on it. F
- [4] The Court of Appeal had on 7 February 2011 allowed MRC's appeal concluding that the balance of convenience tipped in favour of MRC and that damages would at the end of the day be a sufficient remedy for Sumatec. It also found that MRC was not guilty of any unconscionable conduct to restrain it from calling on the bank guarantee. G H

The Opposing Contentions

- [5] Sumatec strongly contended that MRC's call on the bank guarantee amounts to unconscionable conduct and this in itself is sufficient ground to challenge the calling for payments under the said bank guarantee. I

- A [6] Sumatec argued that “unconscionability” or unconscionable conduct is a separate and distinct exception to the accepted exception that only in the case of a fraud could the court grant a restraining order and that there were circumstances in this case to establish unconscionable conduct.
- B [7] The following circumstances were cited in submission as evidence of the alleged unconscionable conduct on the part of MRC:
- C (i) There was an agreement in principle reached by the parties for the bank guarantee to be reduced. This was in tandem with the reduction in the scope of works from that originally contracted for between MRC and Sumatec. It referred to the minutes of the meeting between the parties held on 29 October 2009 stating that:
- D Liability, Warranty and Performance Bond: MRC confirmed that Sumatec could reduce the value of their performance bond in line with a value to be proposed by MRC.
- E The original contract sum was RM47,846,688. This was reduced to a sum of approximately RM13 million.
- F (ii) A provisional acceptance certificate had been issued to MRC for works performed to completion by Sumatec up to 31 May 2009. The certificate certified that the works completed up to 31 May 2009 by Sumatec was in the main accepted as satisfactory to MRC.
- G (iii) MRC had no claims for any LAD for any delay and neither had MRC raised any other complaints/disputes, if at all Sumatec was in default.
- H (iv) There was a one year gap between the date when the completed works was provisionally accepted and the date of the demand of the bank guarantee without any explanation by MRC.
- I (v) There is clear evidence of a reduction of Sumatec’s scope of works under the contract to a region of about RM13 million only. Accordingly, the demand on the bank guarantee for RM4,535,255.67 was equivalent to 40% of the value of the actual total contract sum. This amount was wholly disproportionate bearing in mind that the bank guarantee specifically sets the limit of the guaranteed sum at 10% of the contract sum.

(vi) From the minutes of the meeting between the parties, it is evident that the parties had agreed in principle to reduce the value of the bank guarantee to reflect the reduction of Sumatec's scope of works and the reduction in the contract value. Notwithstanding the same, MRC proceeded to make a call on the bank guarantee.

A

B

[8] MRC on the other hand contended that the bank guarantee was unconditional in nature and on-demand in character and thus cannot be restrained from being called and for payment to be made out to it by BIMB.

C

[9] It was submitted by learned counsel of MRC that only fraud which has been brought to the notice of the bank is the recognised exception. It was contended too that fraud must be clearly established and that here no fraud had occurred in their notice to the bank.

D

[10] MRC also contended that there was no merit to the allegation that their call on the bank guarantee was made in bad faith. MRC argued that bad faith or unconscionable conduct is not an exception to the generally accepted rule by Malaysian courts that only fraud can be a ground to injunct any payment out of a bank guarantee once a valid written demand has been made by a beneficiary.

E

The Question

F

[11] Before us, leave to appeal was allowed on this sole question of law, namely:

Whether "unconscionable conduct" on the part of a beneficiary of a bank guarantee or a performance bond is a distinct ground, apart from "fraud", that entitles the Court to restrain the beneficiary from calling on or demanding and receiving monies under the bank guarantee or performance bond.

G

[12] Learned counsel for Sumatec informed us that in recent times the Malaysian courts have begun to recognize the element of unconscionability as a distinct ground for restraining the beneficiary from calling on or demanding moneys under the performance bond. He advised us however that the apex court has never yet dealt with this matter. A number of High Court decisions supporting the unconscionability ground were brought to our attention. They are:

H

I

- (i) Nafas Abadi Holdings Sdn Bhd v. Putrajaya Holdings Sdn Bhd & Anor [2004] 1 LNS 127;

- A (ii) Satriadesa Corporation Sdn Bhd v. Tenaga Nasional Bhd [2010] 4 CLJ 877;
- (iii) Focal Asia Sdn Bhd & Anor v. Raja Noraini Raja Datuk Nong Chik & Anor [2009] 1 LNS 913;

- B (iv) The Radio & General Trading Co Sdn Bhd v. Wayss & Freytag (Malaysia) Sdn Bhd [1997] 1 LNS 400.

[13] From neighbouring Singapore, four cases were cited to support this contention. They are:

- C (i) Bocotra Construction Pte Ltd & Ors v. AG (No. 2) [1995] 2 SLR 733;
- (ii) GHL Pte Ltd v. Unitrack Building Construction Pte Ltd [1999] 3 SLR (R) 44;
- D (iii) Newtech Engineering Construction Pte Ltd v. BKB Engineering Constructions Pte Ltd and Others [2003] SGHC 141;
- (iv) Samwoh Asphalt Premix Pte Ltd v. Sum Cheong Piling Pte Ltd & Anor [2002] 1 SLR 1.
- E

- [14] The learned High Court judge accepted that the demand made by MRC, in the particular circumstances of this case was unconscionable and that this may be a ground for the court's intervention in granting the restraining order. That, despite the demand being valid and that the bank guarantee here was an on demand and unconditional bank guarantee. This can be seen from the clear words of the preamble and cl. 1 of the bank guarantee itself, which states:
- F

- G If the CONTRACTOR shall in any respect fail to execute the CONTRACT or commit any breach of its obligations thereunder as certified by MRC, the GUARANTOR shall pay to MRC on first notice and without any proof and conditions the sum of Ringgit Malaysia: Four Million Seven Hundred Eighty Four Thousand Six Hundred Sixty Eight and sent Eighty Only (RM 4,784,668.80) being 10% (ten percent) of the CONTRACT PRICE.
- H

- [15] The Court of Appeal also came to the same conclusion on the nature of the bank guarantee ie, that it was an on-demand guarantee. We affirm these contractual interpretations of the bank guarantee as being an on-demand one; as can be seen from the clear terms in its preamble.
- I

[16] The Court of Appeal however disagreed with the High Court in concluding that MRC had acted unconscionably. The learned judges of appeal accepted that unconscionability can be an exception. Their Lordships however came to a finding of facts that, in the instant case, Sumatec had failed to adduce sufficient evidence of unconscionable conduct on the part of MRC in making the call on the bank guarantee.

A

B

[17] The Court of Appeal used the following tests and principles in coming to its conclusion, in determining the issue at hand as found in the following passages from its judgment:

C

(i) The principle concerning “unconscionability” was initially propounded by Lord Denning in the case of Lloyds Bank v. Bundy [1975] QB 326 where it was held that unconscionable transaction between parties may be set aside by the court of equity. This “unconscionable” category is said to extend to all cases where unfair advantage has been gained by an unconscientious use of power by a stronger party against a weaker (see also: Halsbury’s Law of England, 3rd edn, Vol. 17 [1956] at p. 682).

D

(ii) On an application for relief against unconscionable conduct, the court looks to the conduct of the party attempting to enforce, or retain benefit of, a dealing with a person under a special disability in circumstances where it is not consistent with equity or good conscience that he should do so. (see: Commercial Bank of Australia Ltd v. Amadio and Another [1983] 46 ALR 402).

E

F

(iii) In the Singapore High Court, Lai Kew Chai J in the case of Min Thai Holdings Pte Ltd v. Suniable Pte Ltd & Anor [1999] 2 SLR 368 opined that “the concept of unconscionability involves unfairness, as distinct from dishonesty or fraud, or conduct so reprehensible or lacking in good faith that a court of conscience would either restrain the party or refuse to assist the party”.

G

(iv) It is not possible to define “unconscionability” other than to give some very broad indications such as lack of bona fides. What kind of situation would constitute “unconscionability” would have to depend on the facts of each case. This is a question which the court has to consider on each occasion where its jurisdiction is invoked. There is no pre-determined categorization (see: Dauphin Offshore Engineering and Trading Pte Ltd v. The Private Office of HRH Sheikh Sultan bin Khadifa bin Zayed Al-Nahyan [2000] 1 SLR (R) 117; and Shanghai Electric Group Co Ltd v. PT Merak Energi Indonesia [2010] 2 SLR 329)

H

I

- A (v) Based on the above considerations, we are of the view that there is no simple formula that would enable the court to ascertain whether a party had acted unconscionably in making a call on an on-demand performance bond or bank guarantee. In the final analysis, whether or not
- B “unconscionability” has been made out is largely dependent on the facts of each case. In every case where “unconscionability” is made out, there would always be an element of unfairness or some form of conduct which appears to be performed in bad faith.
- C (vi) In Bocotra Construction Pte Ltd v. AG [1995] 2 SLR (R) 262, the Singapore Court of Appeal, stated that “a higher degree of strictness applies, as the applicant will be required to establish a clear case of fraud or unconscionability in the interlocutory proceedings. It is clear that mere allegations are insufficient.”
- D [18] Of the various propositions on the concept of unconscionability that emerged from the case authorities adverted to in the judgment of the Court of Appeal, three entrenched principles may be discerned, as observed by Kartigesu JA speaking
- E for the Singapore Court of Appeal in Bocotra. They are:
- (a) The autonomy principle - the guarantee constitutes a separate contract from the underlying transaction between the account party and the beneficiary; its privity being only between the
- F beneficiary and the issuing bank.
- (b) The “cash in hand” principle - reflecting the importance of promoting commercial efficacy and certainty in the use of letters (of credit) guarantees and bonds. This ties in with the autonomy principle.
- G (c) The ‘fraud’ exception - the sole exception to the autonomy and cash in hand principles arises where the plaintiff can establish fraud in the circumstances of the call or payment. This permits injunctive relief.
- H [19] The fundamental principle behind a bank guarantee is that it is separate and independent of the underlying contract between the disputing immediate parties and the contract between the account party and the bank. Thus in this case, MRC could, relying
- I on this autonomy principle, call upon BIMB to make payment on the bank guarantee at any time and without proof of any breaches arising from the underlying contract.

[20] However the rigidity of this autonomy principle could sometimes produce injustice. In English Law the now well accepted single exception of fraud was recognised by the courts to counter any injustice that may arise from a call or payment on the bank guarantee. And the reason is this; the certainty of payment to the beneficiary under the autonomy principle has tipped the balance of risk heavily in favour of the beneficiary, sometimes resulting in inequitable result to the account party whilst achieving the desired commercial result. (see article by Jeffrey J Browne: The Fraud Exception to Standby Letters of Credit in Australia: Does it Embrace Statutory Unconscionability? Bond Law Review Vol. II Issue 1, 6 January 1999)

A

B

C

[21] The fraud exception relies upon the maxim ex turpi causa non oritur actio (no action arises out of a dishonourable cause). The fraud exception is thus recognised to balance the risks between the parties.

D

[22] This strict approach towards the non interference by the courts on the bank's obligations is best explained in this oft-quoted passage of Kerr J in Harbottle (Mercantile) v. National Westminster Bank Ltd [1978] 1 QB 146 who said:

E

It is only in exceptional cases that the courts will interfere with the machinery of irrevocable obligations assumed by banks. They are the life-blood of international commerce. Such obligations are regarded as collateral to the underlying rights and obligations between the merchants at either end of the banking chain. Except possibly in clear cases of fraud of which the banks have notice, the courts will leave the merchants to settle their disputes under the contracts by litigation or arbitration as available to them or stipulated in the contracts. The courts are not concerned with the difficulties to enforce such claims; these are risks which the merchants take.

F

G

[23] And to further emphasise that banks should be "left free to honour its contractual obligation" these passages from Edward Owen Engineering Ltd v. Barclays Bank International Ltd [1978] QB 159 may be quoted, where Sir John Donaldson MR, speaking for the Court of Appeal said:

H

- (i) In requesting his bank to issue such a letter, bond or guarantee, the customer is seeking to take advantage of the unique characteristic. If, save in the most exceptional cases, he is to be allowed to derogate from the bank's personal and

I

- A irrevocable undertaking, given be it again noted at his request, by obtaining an injunction restraining the bank from honouring that undertaking, he will undermine what is the bank's greatest asset, however large and rich it may be, namely its reputation for financial and contractual probity.
- B (ii) The wholly exceptional case where an injunction may be granted is where it is proved that the bank knows that any demand for payment already made or which may thereafter be made will clearly be fraudulent. But the evidence must be clear, both as to the fact of fraud and as to the bank's knowledge.
- C

[24] The above quoted passage from Harbottle was also used by our then Supreme Court in Esso Petroleum Malaysia Inc v. Kago Petroleum Sdn Bhd [1995] 1 CLJ 283, as a basis to hold that a performance bond, which the Supreme Court likened to a pure on-demand guarantee, is independent of the underlying contract between the disputing parties, and that it is not open for the courts to inquire into any breach of obligations in the underlying contract. The Supreme Court found that it was wrong for the High Court to allow the interim injunction to restrain the appellant/purchaser from receiving the moneys under the said performance bond.

- [25] Unconscionability as an added and distinct exception to restrain payments in on demand guarantees has lately made some inroad into some common law jurisdictions. Thus in Singapore some authorities, notably Bocatra (supra) unconscionability was introduced seemingly as an additional ground for restraining a call or payment on a bank guarantee although the concept was not accorded a full discussion in that case. One view as observed by
- F
- G Hang Yen Low in his very useful article entitled "Unconscionability As A Ground For Withholding Payment In Demand Guarantees: Should The Exception Be Extended To Letters Of Credit?" [2008] 1 MLJ clxxxiii" is that since unconscionability and fraud are terms used interchangeably in Bocatra and that the court did not investigate the facts relating to the underlying contract the judgment "was specifically tailored to dispel the notion that fraud was not the sole ground for an interim injunction". Thus it would seem that Bocatra does not depart from the English position. This view was supported in New Civilbuild Pte Ltd v. Guobena Sdn Bhd & Another
- H
- I [1999] 1 SLR 374 where the learned JC stated that:

Given that the Court of Appeal had stated that the weight of authority had suggested that fraud as the sole exception was well entrenched, I do not understand the court as having changed the law without a discussion of the basis for it.

A

[26] However in GHL Pte Ltd v. Unitrack Building Construction Pte Ltd [1999] 4 SLR 604 - the Court of Appeal took a forward leap in holding that unconscionability alone could constitute a ground for restraining a call for payment under a performance bond and that Bocatra had been “a conscious departure from the English position”. Unconscionability has thus found a sound footing as a distinct exception in Singapore.

B

C

[27] In Malaysia there have been some attempts in the High Courts to adopt the concept of unconscionability as an additional exception. Learned counsel for the appellant referred us to those High Court cases we had mentioned earlier.

D

[28] MRC of course took the stand that unconscionability is not a ground to restrain a beneficiary’s call on a bank guarantee. The following cases were cited in support:

(i) Supreme Court - Esso Petroleum Malaysia Inc v. Kago Petroleum Sdn Bhd [1995] 1 CLJ 283

E

(ii) Court of Appeal - LEC Contractors (M) Sdn Bhd v. Castle Inn Sdn Bhd & Anor [2000] 3 CLJ 473

F

(iii) High Court - Bains Harding (Malaysia) Sdn Bhd v. Arab-Malaysian Merchant Bank Bhd & 3 Ors [1996] 1 BLJ 25

G

H

I

[29] In Bains Harding the concept of unconscionability was interchangeably used with fraud, where it was found that the defendants were guilty of fraud, (although not pleaded) and had acted in bad faith and in an unconscionable manner to justify the granting of an interlocutory injunction to the plaintiff to restrain the defendants from accepting any money from the bank under the bank guarantees. In coming to his decision the learned judge went into a full fledged inquiry into the parties conduct, the terms of the underlying contract and supplementary agreements, the respective performance of the obligations of both parties, and also the determination on whether a breach of any of the agreements had occurred. The court also found that the balance of convenience favoured the plaintiff and that damages would not be

A an adequate remedy to the plaintiff. There was however no finding made that the bank had notice of the fraud, a necessary requirement as held in Esso Petroleum, nor that unconscionability may be a distinct exception.

B [30] In LEC Contractors (M) Sdn Bhd the Court of Appeal took a different position. It found that only fraud which must be pleaded, can be an exception. In that case it was held that:

C A mere allegation of fraud is not sufficient. Fraud must be specifically pleaded and proved. In the instant case, not only fraud was not specifically pleaded in the pleadings but also the instances of fraud submitted in the submission were clearly not instances of fraud but dispute between parties. Although it is clear from the authorities, the dispute must be settled and it would affect the performance bond, but unconscionable conduct or bad faith by itself is not fraud. What is more important to justify any

D injunction to stop payment is that there must be clear evidence of fraud on the part of the 1st defendant which comes to the knowledge of the 2nd defendant. As the 2nd defendant has no knowledge of any fraud or that fraud was ever given to its notice, it had no choice but to honour the performance bond and meet

E the demand of the 1st defendant.

In that case the Court of Appeal also held that the performance bond should be looked at on its face value to determine whether it was a conditional or a non conditional bond. And since it was

F found that it was an on-demand bond, the court should not be concerned whether an actual breach had been committed or not. Unconscionability as a distinct ground to restrain a call on a performance bond was not discussed in that case.

G [31] The Supreme Court in Esso Petroleum Malaysia Inc. when faced with this issue looked directly into the contractual interpretation of the performance bond itself and the bank's obligation under it instead of the nature of the transaction between the contracting parties under the underlying contract. In other words, the court was merely concerned with the bank

H honouring its obligation under the guarantee and would not enquire into any breach of either party in the underlying contract. The Supreme Court supported the view that only fraud can be an exception to the autonomy principle of the agreement between the beneficiary and the bank, and cited with approval the passage

I of Kerr J in Harbottle which we adverted to earlier in this judgment. Contrary to Sumatec's counsel's reading of the case, we find that there was no finding on unconscionability in Esso Petroleum although one of the grounds advanced to maintain the injunction restraining the buyer/appellant from receiving moneys under the performance bond was that the delays in the delivery of materials by the seller/respondent was caused by the buyer/appellant's own refusal to accept the goods. The other ground was that Esso had not at the time it accepted the delayed goods, indicated its intention to claim damages. These grounds could have triggered a discussion on unconscionability but no argument was advanced in that direction and as such the Supreme Court did not consider it.

[32] Thus, the position as stated by Esso Petroleum would be to merely interpret the performance bond or a letter of guarantee to determine whether it is conditional or unconditional, the latter being a security that is readily, promptly and assuredly realizable on demand by the beneficiary (see also IE Contractors Ltd v. Lloyd's Bank Plc [1990] 2 Lloyd's Rep 496 which deployed the same approach for unconditional bonds). Liability will not be dependent upon a proof of any breach under the underlying contract. This would be decided at the trial. And the bank is not concerned with the incidence of any actual default.

[33] It would seem from the modern authorities we have read, that in the case of on demand letters of guarantee or performance bonds the courts are now more willing to look beyond the fraud exception and consider unconscionability as a separate and independent ground to allow for a restraining order on the beneficiary.

[34] The rationale for embracing this equitable exception can be seen from this passage of the Australian High Court decision of Stern v. McArthur (1988) 165 CLR 489, where it was said:

The general underlying notion is that which has long been identified as underlying much of equity's traditional jurisdiction to grant relief against unconscientious conduct, namely, that a person should not be permitted to use or insist upon his legal rights to take advantage of another's special vulnerability or misadventure for the unjust enrichment of himself ...

- A [35] In Australia unconscionable conduct is prohibited by her Trade Practices Act 1974 with the introduction of the new Pt IV A in 1992, in both commercial dealings (ss. 51AA & 51AC) and in consumer transactions (s. 51AB). The Victorian Court of Appeal in Olex Focas Pty Ltd v. Skodaexport Co Ltd [1998] 3 VR 380 (a case involving the autonomy of standby letter of credit) observed that the effect of this Act “is to work a substantial inroad into well established common law autonomy of letters of credit and performance bonds and other guarantees”. The Victorian Court of Appeal however affirmed the Supreme Court decision of Batt J at first instance to disallow an injunction on the ground of unconscionability under s. 51AA opining that the calling of a performance bond in order “to exert commercial pressure on the account party to achieve an advantageous settlement of a dispute is not itself unconscionable” (see article by Hang Yen Low, supra). Batt J held that gross unconscionability falling short of actual fraud is not a ground for an injunction under the general law. His Honour noted that there was no definition of the word “unconscionability” in the Act and referred to the Oxford English Dictionary its meaning which defines that word as “showing no regard for conscience; not in accordance with what is right or reasonable”.

- F [36] We are also in agreement with Mohamad Ariff bin Md Yusof JC in the case of Focal Asia Sdn Bhd when he expressed this opinion on these two exceptions and the test to be applied-

- G If there is clear evidence of fraud in the underlying contract, or unconscionability, the Court can interfere. In these two situations, the integrity and autonomy of the document will not be compromised, since the paying bank will not be directly prevented from acting on the document. It is the beneficiary that is prevented from making a call on the document on these grounds. Nonetheless, the evidence allowing intervention by the Court must be clear. I accept the test of “seriously arguable that the only realistic inference is fraud” as good law in an interlocutory application such as the present.
- H

- I [37] In the United Kingdom, the fraud exception to the autonomy principle is to be proved to the appropriate test which in Edward Owen Engineering Ltd v. Barclays Bank International Ltd [1978] 1 All ER 976 placed it at a level of “very clearly established fraud”. Lord Denning MR in that case also stated that the fraud exception applied to both fraud in the documents and in the underlying contract and in circumstances in which the beneficiary has knowledge at the time of the presentation. Lord Denning MR stated this:

That case shows that there is this exception to the strict rule; the bank ought not to pay under the credit if it knows that the documents are forged or that the request for payment is made fraudulently in circumstances when there is no right to payment.

[38] In Canada the Edward Owen test of “clearly established fraud” has been somewhat diluted to the less stringent test of a “strong prima facie case” of fraud. (see CDN Research & Development Ltd v. Bank of Nova Scotia (1980) 18 CPC 62 (Ont HC). The fraud also need not be merely confined to the tendered documents but extended to the underlying contract. (see Bank of Nova Scotia v. Angelica - Whitewear (1987) 36 DLR (4th) 161 (SC).

[39] We are of the considered view that the “seriously arguable and realistic inference” test as used by the learned Judicial Commissioner in Focal Asia is equally applicable to the extended exception of unconscionability. That test therefore needs to be applied to the relevant material facts before the court. The same test which results in a ‘strong prima facie case’ was utilized by the Court of Appeal at the intermediate appeal stage. And the Court of Appeal said this of the required burden now rested on the shoulder of Sumatec:

As in the case of fraud, to establish “unconscionability” there must be placed before the court manifest or strong evidence of some degree in respect of the alleged unconscionable conduct complained of, not a bare assertion. Hence, the Respondent has to satisfy the threshold of a seriously arguable case that the only realistic inference is the existence of “unconscionability” which would basically mean establishing a strong prima facie case. In other words, the Respondent has to place sufficient evidence before the court so as to enable the court to be satisfied, not necessarily beyond reasonable doubt, that a case of “unconscionability” being committed by the beneficiary (the Appellant) has been established to an extent sufficient for the court to be minded to order injunction sought. This additional ground of “unconscionability” should only be allowed with circumspect where events or conduct are of such degree such as to prick the conscience of a reasonable and sensible man.

A We are in agreement with those propositions.

[40] After the close of submissions, we were served, on 15 December 2011, by learned counsel of Sumatec, an additional submission citing a recent decision of the Court of Appeal which had discussed the very question now posed to us in this appeal.

B MRC responded via its letter dated 28 December 2011. This was the case of Kejuruteraan Bintai Kindenko Sdn Bhd v. Nam Fatt Construction Sdn Bhd & Anor [2011] 7 CLJ 442. We have scrutinised that decision and the reasons for the findings of the learned judges in that case. We are inclined to agree wholly with the principles enunciated by the court there. The Court of Appeal agreed with Focal Asia that the principle recognizing unconscionability as a separate and distinct ground to restrain a beneficiary from making a call on a performance bond accorded with good commercial sense. We also agree with these other holdings of the Court of Appeal:

(i) In my view, consonant with the principle as laid down by my learned brother, unconscionability is a doctrine which allows courts to deny enforcement of a contract because of abuses arising out of the contract.

E

(ii) In my view the principle underlying the unconscionability doctrine is the prevention of oppression and unfair conduct; and because the determination of unconscionability is fact specific, courts must consider such a claim on a case by case basis and assess the totality of the circumstances.

F

(iii) A distinction must be drawn between an injunction to restrain a bank/issuer from making payment out on a performance bond (which is governed by the performance guarantee agreement) and an injunction to restrain a beneficiary from making a demand on the bond (which is governed by the underlying contract between the parties).

G

(iv) All the facts and circumstances surrounding the demands made by the first respondent on both the performance bonds were so lacking in good faith and amounted to unconscionable conduct that it warranted court intervention by way of injunction to avoid injustice. The demands on the bonds were premature, invalid and of no effect.

H

[41] A determination on whether unconscionability applies in a particular case would therefore depends largely on the material facts. Coincidentally, the same learned appeal judge wrote the lead judgment in Kindenke and in this case. The injunction was allowed in Kindenke and refused in this case.

I

[42] So, to answer the question posed to us, we say yes, unconscionability may now be raised as a distinct ground, to restrain a beneficiary under a bank guarantee or performance bond.

[43] In this appeal, Sumatec raised several incidences of the alleged unconscionable conduct on the part of MRC as particularised earlier in this judgment. These are factual matters which have been carefully evaluated and answered below in the Court of Appeal (see paras. 32 to 38 of the Court of Appeal judgment). The learned judges rightly concluded based on the materials before them, that unconscionability had not been proven to maintain the injunction granted below. We defer to these findings of facts by the Court of Appeal. We cannot find any reasons to justify an interference with the appellate judges' exercise of their discretion to set aside the injunction. It is unnecessary for us to add, minus or expand on the reasons given by the Court of Appeal to its negative finding of unconscionability on the part of MRC. We also agree with the Court of Appeal that the balance of convenience favoured refusal of the injunction.

[44] For these reasons this appeal is dismissed with costs.

A

B

C

D

E

F

G

H

I